I would describe my knowledge and experience level as:

___ Novice (I do not know much of anything about astronomy, but have an interest.)

___ Some knowledge and experience (I know some basic information about the planets, constellations and celestial objects and can recognize some of them in the sky.)

___ Quite a bit of knowledge and experience (I know the sky pretty well and can name and have observed planets and deep sky objects such as globular clusters, open clusters, nebulae and galaxies.)

___ Very knowledgeable and experienced (I have been an amateur astronomy buff for quite some time, have a good bit of experience observing and have done quite a bit of study and reading.)

___ Professional astronomer

Please check any of the following that apply.

___ I own a telescope. Please describe (e.g., manufacturer, type [refractor/reflector/compound], mount [alt/az, equatorial, Dobsonian]), aperture.

___ I own a set of binoculars suited for astronomical observing. Please describe (e.g., manufacturer, 7x50/10x50, image stabilized).

___ I have access to a relatively remote dark sky site 20 minutes to one hour's drive away from one of our Hill Country towns that might be available to us for monthly star parties. Please describe location in relation to nearest Hill Country town.
